

OLD MIDDLESEX CANAL BROUHAHA BREWING

The latest controversy in the Town of Wilmington is over the old Middlesex Canal, which dates back to 1797, and is believed to be the oldest in the United States.

The controversy broke into the open Monday night, at the Selectmen's meeting, although various town officials had been cognizant of it for the past ten days.

The section of the canal involved is that between Butters Row and the Town Park. It had been the property of Mrs. Julia H. A. Crockett since 1893, and since her death the property of her daughter, Mrs. George M. A. M. Webber.

In the annual Town Meeting on March 13th, the town voted to authorize to take by eminent domain some of the Webber property, which vote included this section of the canal, for the purpose of developing a new well field.

The Thursday following, the Board of Water Commissioners were apprised by Stanley Webber, and his attorney, Joseph F. Courtney, former Town Manager of Wilmington, that the land containing the canal had been given to the Wilmington Historical Society.

The Water Commissioners were told that this had been done to make certain that the remains of the canal would not be destroyed, and at the same time were assured by Mr. Webber that nothing would be done to deprive the Water Commissioners from getting water, if a suitable site was found, on the property.

The Selectmen's Meeting Town Manager Gerald Bouchard Monday night, told the Selectmen of the situation. He related that the town had given the Water Commissioners the power to take by eminent domain, and that $429,000 had been appropriated for well fields at three sites.

Mrs. Webber, he said, had conveyed to the Wilmington Historical Society the land through which the canal ran, and this was recorded the day before the Town Meeting. Under the Massachusetts statutes, Chapter 79, Section 5A, no historic landmark—preserved and maintained by any historical organization—as property of historical or antiquarian interest—shall be taken without leave of the General Court, specially obtained.

FitzMaurice has 406 names ready

Raymond F. Fitzmaurice, of Boutwell Street, one of the persons who attended the 'Gas Hearing', Tuesday night, in the Boutwell School, has a petition prepared for calling a Special Town Meeting, in the event that the Permanent Building Committee decides to install gas heat, in the new West Intermediate School, he told the Town Crier, after the hearing.

Two hundred signatures are necessary in any such petition, to give to the Board of Selectmen. Fitzmaurice has more than twice the required number.

Fitzmaurice was one of 133 persons who were in the Boutwell

School Tuesday evening, to attend the hearing - the 133 being the number present just before a vote was taken, at 10:21 pm., but not including the Board of Selectmen, who were conducting the meeting, or the Permanent Building Committee, or people directly present in a professional capacity, to speak on the questions.

The vote was 75 against and 17 in favor of gas heat. Two school committee members, Dick Keane and Arthur V. Lynch, and Building Superintendent Fred Jaeschke were among those who voted for the gas heat.

The vote was not binding upon the members of the Permanent Building Committee, as the hearing was told by member Bob Barry, who spoke on this point twice. The second time he spoke Barry said that the committee would certainly pay attention to the vote.

The hearing was a special meeting of the Board of Selectmen, and Chairman Mrs. Wylie Drew, when she opened the meeting at 8:10 pm told those present that the only subject to be discussed was that of the merits of the proposals for gas heat. After the presentation of the arguments, she said, there would be an opportunity for questions. There were 100 persons in the cafeteria when Mrs. Drew opened the meeting. Chairman Robert Michelson of the PBC was

State may take part Much debate on Planning consultant

Danny Gillis won a quiet victory, in the Planning Board meeting Tuesday night. Gillis, for two years, has been suggesting and moving that the board meet weekly, and for two years he has had receptive ears, but no real action.

But, after three hours of discussing everything in circles, Tuesday, the Planning Board members finally realized that in order to get more business done they would have to have more frequent meetings. Bob Evans moved 'Let's meet every Tuesday until we get this program (Town Planner Program) going!'

Gillis just sat back and chuckled, as the motion carried unanimously. The three hour meeting ended with a motion by past Chairman James Banda to continue the general discussion next week, a motion that was seconded by James Miceli.

April First Bulletins

The Town Crier learned early this morning that the US Army Corps of Engineers have been studying a plan to reopen the Middlesex Canal. A $300 million dollar federal appropriation is to be asked for this purpose.

The idea is to divert waters of the Merrimack River through to Boston Harbor for the purpose of providing more fresh water for the Charles River.

It is understood that the project will require the total reconstruction of the canal.

Loof Lirpa, internationally famous civil engineer from Finland will direct the design and construction of the project.

The Chamber of Commerce confirmed yesterday that an oilfield has been located in Wilmington. Secret explorations had been carried on for some months by Avco Engineers. No statement was made as to the extent of the oilfield, but it is on property owned by Robert Evans.

It was also learned that this was the basis for the land revaluation undertaken last year by the Board of Assessors.

Town Counsel asked to rule on resignation

Town Counsel Philip Buzzell is being asked to rule on the legality of the resignation of Ralph Peterson, from the Wilmington Housing Authority. Peterson submitted a written resignation during the meeting of March 9th to the then acting chairman, Mrs. Flora Kasabuski, after the lady had denounced members of the authority for failure to attend meetings. Peterson was the chairman of the Housing Authority at the time of his resignation.

Following the meeting in which Peterson resigned, a special meeting, an adjourned meeting, was held on March 13th at the WHA headquarters, in which James P. Donahue was elected chairman, and at which meeting all four members were present.

Meeting last Thursday night, in the Lowell General Hospital because of illness of member Ernest Crispo, the board voted unanimously to write a letter to the Town Counsel, asking for a ruling on the resignation. The motion was by Mrs. Kasabuski, asking whether or not the resignation was legal, and the motion was amended by Eddie Forrest, who wanted all facts and circumstances explained to Mr. Buzzell.

Prior to the vote, Mr. Forrest had made a motion that the clerk of the Authority write a letter to the Town Clerk questioning the legality of the meeting on March 13th because there was no notice posted. Every one agreed that there was no notice posted and Donahue said that it was an adjourned annual meeting, and that the authority did not need to post it, according to its by-laws. Donahue said that the letter should be to the Town Counsel, and not to the Town Clerk.

When Mrs. Kasabuski said she was abstaining from voting, she was told by Forrest that if the vote were not unanimous the Housing Authority 'would have its worst year', that he would never vote for anything Mrs. Kasabuski voted for, that he would never vote for anything that Donahue or Kasabuski voted for, that as much as possible he would never come to a meeting so that there would be no quorum, and he would see to it that there was no quorum.

Mrs. Kasabuski changed her vote, making it unanimous.

LET COOL HEADS PREVAIL

There are a few observations to be made about the current controversy over well fields and the Old Middlesex Canal. First, it is to be regretted, and secondly, as readers of this paper are aware, the Town Crier has long had a special interest in the long and fascinating history of this town.

Certainly, an effort to preserve remaining sections of the Middlesex Canal deserves support. One of the first remarks by Sam Snow, Planning Consultant retained for the Planning Board, was to wonder why the town wasn't trying to preserve the entire canal.

It would be unfortunate to interpret the recent gift by Mrs Webber of a section of the canal as an effort to block the development of a wellfield. Her purpose, as interpreted by this paper, was entirely altruistic. Had she chosen not to give the land to the Historical Society she could have looked forward to substantial damages from the town for a property taken by eminent domain.

Mrs Webber, it would seem, started plans to give this land to the Historical Society before there was any knowledge that it would be wanted for a well field. It would seem that she had no knowledge of this, and was acting from good and honest motives.

For the record it should be noted (a copy of a letter is included in this week's issue) that the Historical Society has offered to make arrangements with town officials to insure access to needed water supplies. The Town Meeting vote was for 'purchase or eminent domain', which would allow a sufficiently broad grant for necessary negotiations.

Preserving the Canal, and providing an access to the water supply are not incompatible.

It would seem that reasonable people can find a solution without having to dash off to the Legislature to have a local question resolved.

Will anchor Tradesmen pitching

Field

Kevin Field and Jeff Williamson, two ex-Wilmington High School Pitchers, now attending Northeastern University and Springfield College respectively, will be doing a lion's share of the hurrying for the local semi-pro aggregation this summer.

Kevin really came into his own last summer with a record of 12 wins and only 5 losses. Half of his conquests involved the top four teams in the Carling League. He knocked off league champ Winchester twice, runner-up Reading once, third place finisher Wakefield once and North Cambridge twice. One of his victories over the Cantabs was a shut-out which matched other whitewash jobs of Lexington and Woburn.

As mentioned in this paper last week, Kevin is in line for a starting position with the Northeastern University pitching staff this spring. Last year Northeastern met the University of Maine at Fenway Park in the NCAA Regional Finals.

Williamson

Jeff Williamson, pitching for Springfield College, is making a tour of the south. A week ago he played against the Marines at Camp LeJeune, N.C. and dropped a four to one decision. Last Saturday, he defeated the University of Maryland 3 to 1.

Jeff's record with Reading last year was 6 wins and 1 loss.

Other full time pitchers who will be in contention for openings on the Tradesmen staff are: Fred Caldwell of Salem State College, who was in the Detroit Tigers system for a while, and Dave Weeks of Chelmsford. First baseman Don McGillicuddy and outfielders Connie Barry and Jim Lambert will be used in spots, and as relievers.

TOWN NOTES

Snowbirds?

As all the world knows, Wilmington had six inches of snow on Monday, just as it seemed that the winter was over. It seems instead, that we are going to have more winter after the Spring Equinox than we had prior to that date.

Kay Guarino of Forest Street looked out her kitchen window, at the spot in her garden where she is planning to plant peas for the summer dinners, and spotted 15 robins - no less, cavorting in the snow, on Tuesday morning.

It was, she avers, a most beautiful sight.

Too Bad

Father Leahy of St. Dorothy's Church has lost an excellent opportunity to make an outstanding announcement from the altar of his church -- and he won't know of it until he reads it in this column.

Father Leahy is one of the few scoffers in town -- the people who say that the Town Crier's Easy Do It Yourself Subscription Method Won't Work.

The Town Crier has been twitting the good priest, by telling him he can help, on the first Sunday in January, 1966, by announcing from the altar that it is time to pay for Town Crier Subscriptions, and adding that he is going to send in his own.

We thought it was a wonderful idea, even though the gentleman of the cloth looked as though he felt the idea was somewhat dubious in value. But, he forked over $3 for this year's subscription.

So when we got back to the office, and looked at his subscription record, we found he had already sent in three dollars for this year. Now he is paid to January 1, 1967.

He will now be unable to stand at the altar on that first Sunday in January 1966, and announce etc. etc. Too bad!

Gilligan's Way

The baseball team of Wilmington High School is, as most of our sports aficionados know, under the wing of Joe Gilligan, otherwise known as The Quiet One.

Joe never has much to say, and when he does say things he does it very quietly, and in a gentlemanly manner.

Joe couldn't get his team out for practice this week, due to the snow of Monday.

So the team went into the gym for throwing practice, instead of using the tennis court as usual.

And when they finished their practice, he allowed them to play basketball - so if they don't work out as a baseball team, he can always use them as a basketball squad.

Fair housing committee formed

The start of a Fair Housing Committee for Wilmington was the one result of the report, in the Herbert C. Barrows Auditorium, Sunday evening, of the trips to Selma by the Rev. Terry Clay Thomason and Paul Dunlap, laymen of the Methodist Church.

The start of the committee was announced by the Rev. Paul Berube of St. Thomas and Paul Bodenstein, of Woburn Street, acting co-chairmen. The two men emphasized that the committee was not being sponsored by any church in particular, but was intended to be a town-wide organization.

About 400 persons were in the Herbert C. Barrows Auditorium at 8 pm Sunday to hear the report of the two trips to Selma, Alabama. Included in those present were others who had made a trip to that city: Mrs. Rawson Pembroke of Shawsheen Ave., Mrs. Howard Richter of Columbia Street, Mrs. Terry Thomason and Mrs. Donald Razey, of Adams Street.

The report by the two men was sponsored by the Rev. Mr. Smith of the Baptist Church, the Rev. Mr. Sanders of the Congregational Church, and Father Berube of St. Thomas. It was noted that it was a meeting of Protestants, Catholics and Jews, as Americans. The entire meeting lasted just 100 minutes.

The first trip to Selma, by the two men, was by commercial airliner. The second was by chartered airliner, direct to Selma. Mr. Thomason told of the hostility of the white people, and the clergymen of Alabama.

'The March did not need me,' he said, 'As much as I needed it'. The logistics was entirely in the hands of young negroes, who handled radio communications, medical facilities, food, shelter, and such things as assignment of latrine diggers, to which duty both Mr. Thomason and Dunlap were at one time assigned.

'The young negroes were very responsible people,' he said, -- 'There was no horsing around. The white people who came, clergymen and others, took orders from these young negroes.'

On the morning the march to Montgomery began, the two men found themselves being 'marshalled' of the march. Their duty was to march in a capacity somewhat like that of a sergeant, in an army. If trouble started, if there was any shooting, they were told by the young negroes in charge, they were to see that the marchers under their charge laid down, while the Marshalls were to remain standing.

Mr. Thomason wore his clerical gown, on the first day of the March, and related in a humorous way that was appreciated by the audience, that he was mistaken by some of the natives as a Catholic Priest.

As a young man, Mr. Thomason had grown up in Arkansas and Texas, he told the audience, 'No longer can I joke about the Confederate flag. The Confederate Flag is a symbol of a way of life - a symbol which is going to have to be buried.'

'The negro man can get all the work he wants - for $15 a week. He is emasculated - they take away his manhood - he cannot defend his women - the State Police were taking motion pictures of those in the parade, for evidence for the vendettas which have already begun.'

Excoriated Clergymen

Mr. Thomason excoriated the clergymen in Alabama in their attitudes towards the negroes, - Protestant, Catholic and Jew, including the Methodist Bishop of Alabama and compared them to those who passed by the wounded man, in the Parable of the Good Samaritan. The people who passed by, he pointed out, were on their way to church, and it took the man from outside, the Good Samaritan, to recognize the situation.

In the same way, the Rev. Thomason pointed out, it took the white people from outside the area to recognize the situation 'not that there are not some people in the South who are concerned'.

A total of $852 was collected, or pledged, for the aid of the Selma Civil Rights workers.

CAIN VOTED FOR PAYRAISE

So they went to Greenfield instead

Rep. Fred F. Cain of the 34th Middlesex District was one of the legislators who voted for the pay raise, this week.

'Now that I am in there, I see the situation', he told the Town Crier.

'There are many legislators who have an income outside of their legislative pay - myself included. There are lawyers and others who do not need the money from the Commonwealth.'

'But', he said, 'We don't want a legislative branch composed only of well-to-do people. The legislative branch of the Massachusetts government should include persons from all walks of society. Just because a man is poor is no reason for excluding him from the legislature, and for having the Commonwealth deprived of his services.'

A Legislator gets $5200 a year. The page boys who run errands for the legislators get $4980 a year, a difference of $220. Cain related how some of the poorer members of the legislature cannot afford to go to lunch every day. He has seen them send a page boy out for a cup of coffee and a muffin, and then have to 'tip' the boy 50¢.

'One of the finest men in the legislature - a Republican from Essex County, is dependent wholly on his income from the state. To deprive the people of the Commonwealth of this man's services would be a blow against good government. That's why I voted for the pay raise.'

Strike Benefits

Cain voted against the Strike Benefits bill.

'Massachusetts is one of the most liberal states in the Union, when it comes to employee benefits, and this is proper - but this bill would not help the working man, in spite of what has been said in its favor.'

'The situation today is that Massachusetts needs industry. We have to be alert, to keep jobs for our people. We are not going to do this, keep employment up, if we scare any new industry away.'

'I'm for Labor. That's why I voted against the Strike Benefits Bill', Cain said.

Greenfield Instead

Rep. Cain and the Committee on Counties had been prepared to visit Worcester County, and institutions in Worcester, during the past weekend, on their 'surprise inspection tours'.

At the last moment, they heard that the County employees were reporting for work at 5:30 am in Worcester, to get ready for the visit.

So the committee went to Greenfield and Northampton instead. They inspected jails, courthouses, and other county buildings. They went over budgets.

Rep. Cain reported that he was surprised to discover that there was a lot of duplication in the Four H program.

Directors and Assistant Directors, being paid $11,000 or $12,000 a year, were doing things that might be compared to the volunteer work of Girl Scout and Boy Scout leaders, Cain reported.

'There's a lot of waste there - and I'm going after it! We are going to eliminate the duplication.'

The Legislative Committee on Counties consists of three men, Senator James Long of Woburn, Mr. Cain, and Rep. Francis Bevilacqua of Haverhill. Others facing the camera are state or county officials who wanted to hear what was going on.

program

Paul Lyman, 4 Meadow Lane, has an almost unique kind of job. He goes to cities and towns to expose children to the Measles. It is a new preventative program, now being used for the first time on a municipal basis.

He is an employee of the Pittman-Moore Company, of Indianapolis, Indiana, a branch of the Dow Chemical Company, which is the first company to produce a live measles virus capable of being used in a mass anti-measles program. The product is called Lirugen.

Woburn was the first city in the United States to run an anti-measles clinic, a program which has just finished. Lyman was right in the middle of it all, mixing the vaccines, and tending to the affairs of the company he represents. There were a total of three clinics and it was believed that every preschool child was vaccinated. Approximately 2400 children were treated.

Since the Woburn program, Lyman has conducted one in North Andover, and he starts his third program next week, in neighboring Tawksbury.

Jerry Rooney, the Pride and Joy of the Wilmington Rotary Club because he went through college with an assist of a Rotary Scholarship, and then came back and paid back the money, an ex Air Force officer, and still later a teacher in Wilmington High School, has been touring Europe for the past year on a Motor Scooter, with a Guitar tied onto his back.
He has written of his adventures twice, to the Town Crier.
His third letter is now presented:

25 March '65

Dear Larz:
I am now preparing to continue my journey, after a four month delay in Majorca. I will try to relate some of my adventures before I 'hit the road' again.

My last letter was written from the home of a German family of friends who lived near Munich. With regrets, on November 26th, I left these wonderful people, the Ehrhs, and the enchanting Bavarian surroundings that had been mine for five all-too-short weeks.

On that first day I covered 370 kilometers to Zug, Switzerland, by way of Zurich, after crossing Lake Constance, by ferryboat.

Thanks to much practical use and the help of the English-speaking members of the Ehrh family, I was able to 'hold my own' in German, which is spoken in northern Switzerland. After finding the Youth Hostel at Zug closed, I became the unexpected, but very welcome, overnight guest of a Swiss family whose hospitality was abundant and genuine. All that they would accept for their kindness was 'a postcard from some other country'.

I must mention that the weather left much to be desired in that area at that time of the year. Almost every day was overcast, with rain more often than not. However, people like my Swiss hosts, the Brandenburgs, help to make any day much brighter. The brightness that was frequently lacking outside I found inside the people, themselves.

From Zug I drove my ever faithful scooter to Lucerne, Bern, Lausanne and finally Geneva, where I spent a few days visiting the brother of a friend I had met in England. He is a Science Teacher at the Ecole Internationale, and I spent an amount of time with him seeing the school and the other sights of this truly 'international' city.

While travelling from north to south, on the western side of the Alps, I had the experience of passing some 'unmarked spot' at which everything changed from German to French. I found out that the changing from one foreign language to another is not as easy as passing that 'spot'. In southeast Switzerland Italian is also spoken.

The large cities of Switzerland is very commercialized, and the most of the people live off the tourists. The surprising thing is that the business people are very cold to foreigners, and even seem to lack that 'tactful' friendliness which usually leads to success in business. Also, I found prices very high in the 'Land of the Alps'.

On Dec 1st I left Geneva for Lyons, France, on what started out as a beautiful sunny day and ended as another adventure. I drove the last 50 kilometers (about 32 miles) in a snowstorm. Believe me, this can be quite an experience on a motor scooter. Deo Gratias for my thick blood and calm nature. As might be expected, just as I arrived at Lyons the snowstorm stopped.

The following day I drove to Avignon, which is steeped in history. It is an enchanting city with its walls illuminated at night. There is a cathedral and other shrines dedicated to the Popes who reigned there.

I then went down to Tarascon and took a detour to Marseilles. I was driving in land which reminded me of Arizona and New Mexico. In the quaint town of Narbonne a Frenchman told me that the town was dead because it was not the tourist season. I've always found the people more natural and the pace more pleasant under these conditions.

Although I was in the south-west of France for only a few days, among my observations was the unique ways in which the long narrow loaves of French bread are transported home. I've seen them carried under the arm like a rolled newspaper, strapped to the carrier's seat of bicycles, thrust through the straps of women's handbags and conveyed in many other ingenious ways. The average cup of French coffee takes a bit of 'getting used to'.

Heading for the Spanish border from Narbonne I got my first view of the majestic snow-capped Pyrenees, from a distance, like ghost mountains. I took the coastal route to enter Spain and was rewarded with some beautiful photos of the rugged northern part of the Costa Brava.

I was a bit apprehensive about entering this country in which my language ability amounted to 'pronto' and 'adios'. Thanks to my French I was able to make myself understood with the majority of people.

I spent a few beautiful sunny days in Barcelona and then boarded a boat for the Balearic island of Majorca. It is often referred to as 'The Florida of Europe'. I had heard much of this beautiful resort. I had flown over it many times while in the US Air Force but I found it difficult to enjoy the atmosphere from 40,000 feet.

After the weather in northern Europe, especially the snow-storm I decided to find a southern spot and 'settle' with a job for a few months until the travel weather improved.

It was a ten hour boat trip from Barcelona, and I landed at Palma, the Capital City of Majorca on Dec. 8th. I found an island about the size of Massachusetts, with a climate like that of Florida. This was the place where I wanted to 'settle' - if I could find the work.

This proved to be a bit difficult during the off season. However, after singing in a charity show with my ever present guitar I was asked to sing at a night club, where I have been working ever since.

Before I got the job I had a chance to tour the island and my colored slides of it are probably the most beautiful of my collection. The combinations of mountains and coastal scenery are fantastic.

There is an English speaking section of the city, where most of the English and Americans who stay here live. But, as you can imagine, I decided to live with the natives. All of the people in the pension where I live speak only Spanish or Majorcan, which is more-or-less a French version of Spanish.

At first I had some difficulty but having to use the language is one of the best teaching devices. I now feel quite confident in this language which was completely strange to me only 3 1/2 months ago.

The people are very friendly and tranquil, as their favorite word, manana, will all-too-often indicate. They try to be very helpful, even to a fault. For example, they would rather give you explicit wrong directions than admit that they don't know.

Spain is a relatively poor country and most items are noticeably cheaper here. Of course the wage scale is proportionately low also. As often happens, the tourist influx has inflated some of the local economy and several commodities are higher than in the United States.

I was here on Christmas Eve, which is more like New Year's Eve at home. Christmas as we know it is celebrated on the 5th of January, the Day of the Three Kings (Magi). On this day the children receive their presents from their favorite 'King'.

The night before they leave their shoes on the balcony with grain in them for the camels of the Kings. Needless to say, the grain is gone in the morning.

There was also a very colorful night parade of the Kings, who land on the island by boat. New Year's Eve is celebrated as in the States except that at midnight each person eats 'The Twelve Grapes of Happiness'.

Life is very easy and we foreigners must get used to the Siesta Time, which is from 1:30 pm to 4 pm, during which everything is closed. From the current weather I can tell that the break in the hottest part of the day is really necessary during the summer.

At present I am taking a sun bath on the roof of my pension. I can see the ocean, and the top of the Cathedral, which is the second largest Gothic structure in Spain. I can't help but wonder what the weather is like in Wilmington now. I'm sure it would be a little too warm for my comfort here, in July and August.

After a short visit to the neighboring island of Ibiza, I shall leave Palma on April 9th and head for the Seville area, via Valencia, Alicante, Granada, Malaga, Gibraltar and Cadiz. I hope to be in Seville for Semana Santa (Holy Week), to witness what is regarded as the most spectacular religious celebration in Spain during this week. As I have a Spanish friend there, I'm looking forward to a first hand account of everything.

From Seville I'll visit Portugal and then return to Spain, continuing through Madrid, Zaragoza, and then on to the parts of France that I haven't seen.

Many times here I have met people from foreign countries who knew friends of mine in their homeland. Generally I'm finding out that the world is indeed small, although I don't seem to be getting around it any faster.

I now consider myself to be one of the slowest satellites the United States has released; two years for one orbit will never beat Russia in the space race. However, if the US gains, in proportion to the cost, as much from the space program in this two years as I will have gained from this trip, we'll have no problem with the 'space race'.

I'll close wishing you the best of luck and health. I'm looking forward to the time when I shall be able to fill in some details for you in person.

God bless you,
Sincerely,
Jerry Rooney

BROUHAHA
(Fr. Fr. Pg)

Bouchard reported that Whitman & Howard, consulting engineers for the Water Department, had visited the State Department of Public Health to consider possible alternatives, and that the DPW had given assurances that they would support legislative action if initiated by the town, to take by eminent domain that portion of land now owned by the Historical Society.

Bouchard told the Selectmen that:

1. The Historical Society was incorporated on January 7, 1965, with Mrs. George M. A. M. Webber, Stanley Webber, Julia Fielding, Herbert L. Fielding, Mrs. Esther Nichols and Joseph F. Courtney as members.

2. The deed for the property through which the canal ran was recorded on March 12, 1965, with the following conditions

a. That the Wilmington Historical Society shall never convey, grant, assign, lease, pledge, mortgage or otherwise alienate or dispose of any right, title or interest in said property.

b. That this conveyance, grant, and deed in trust shall be effective so long as the Wilmington Historical Society, Inc. shall continue to exist, but not otherwise.

c. Upon breach of said conditions or trust purposes, or upon dissolution of said Wilmington Historical Society, Inc. the trust--shall terminate, and all right, title and interest granted and conveyed--shall revert to the donor or to her heirs.

On March 13th, the town voted to authorize the taking of the land by eminent domain, Bouchard said. Unless the legislature approves, the land now cannot be taken from the Historical Society.

He urged that the Selectmen assign all urgency to the matter, and advised the board to instruct the Town Counsel to take the necessary steps to effect the taking of this land.

Bouchard remarked that it was strange that two former town officials (Webber and Courtney, Ed.) could sit five rows from the front, in the Town Meeting and say nothing and that no one advised the officials of the town at the Town Meeting 'of the predicament that this had placed the town in'.

Selectman Paul Niles, (who is an attorney, Ed.) told his fellow members that two things might have to be done. First, the Town Counsel should make the move to take the question through the legislature, and, second, another Town Meeting might have to be held to authorize the taking.

Selectman Lloyd Bender moved that the Selectmen should so instruct the Town Counsel, and there was a unanimous vote.

Bender then added that, before any proposed legislation was sent to the State House, he wanted to see it, and first he wanted to see if it was possible to resolve the questions in a friendly manner with the Historical Society.

Webber's Statement

Stanley Webber, questioned by the Town Crier Tuesday, said that the move to give the land to the Historical Society was not a recent one, but rather one that was planned last summer. Mrs. Webber, he said, was very anxious that this section of the canal, the longest stretch still in existence, be preserved for posterity.

It was unfortunate, he said, that several things happened to delay the transfer of the land, and the formation of the Historical Society. The engineer who was to survey was ill for several weeks, and there was all the business of the court suit, involving taxes on industrial and business properties.

There was no intention to deprive the town of water, Webber said that he and Courtney had visited the Board of Water Commissioners, and had told them of the ownership of the canal by the Historical Society, on the Thursday following the Town Meeting.

The Water Commissioners were assured that arrangements could be made to obtain both objectives--the obtaining of water resources by the commissions -- and the preserving of the canal by the Historical Society. The meeting was 'very friendly' Webber said.

Referring to a report that the Town Counsel had said in the Town Hall that the change in ownership could result in the town becoming unable to take the land by eminent domain, and that further the town would be unable to sell the authorized bonds for the purpose of developing well fields, Webber said that he did not believe this to be true.

The Town, he believes, can take by eminent domain any land less in size than that voted in a Town Meeting, but not more. He believes too, that the town will have no difficulty in selling the bonds just because of the ownership of this land by the Historical Society.

Jurors

The names of James D. Blake of Clark Street, and Albert J. Kelley of Lowell Street were drawn to serve in the Jury Pool in East Cambridge, beginning on May 3rd for one month.

The name of Joseph Paglia, 101 Nichols Street, was drawn for the Civil session in Lowell Superior Court, also starting on May 3rd.

Dealer's License

The Board granted to Joseph O'Neill and his partner, a First Class automobile dealer's license, to operate a salesroom on land of Bob Evans, on Ballardvale St.

The firm is known as Continental Trailer Rental & Sales Co., and sells and rents automobile trailers. They will conduct their business from a trailer, on land rented from Mr. Evans. They have a one year lease, and it was pointed out to the Selectmen that the land can still be sold, in the future, for industrial uses.

Elks Lodge

An invitation was received to attend the installation of officers Saturday, at 6:30pm, of the Tewksbury-Wilmington Lodge of Elks. Mrs. Drew will represent the Board of Selectmen.

Conservation Commission

Mrs. Gertrude Robertie, of Woburn Street, N. Wilmington, was re-appointed to the Conservation Commission, for a three year term.

Avco's Fire Marshall, Leland Campbell of Clark Street, was appointed for a three year term, and Arnold F. Lanni, of Reading Avenue, Silver Lake, was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Walter Dinteman. The term expires in 1966. Mr. Lanni, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. George Boylen, is a teacher in Sudbury.

Tax Title

Attorney Simon Cutter was chosen by the board to work with Attorney Alan Altman at the problem of clearing up titles of land taken by the town for non-payment of taxes. Not much has been done in this type of work, for some years, and the board agreed that the work could be done more quickly by two men.

Appointments

At this point in the meeting Selectman Bender suggested that the Selectmen get on to the next item in the agenda -- the Town Manager's report. Mrs. Drew spoke up to say that Selectman LaRivee had a point he wished to discuss. Over half an hour was to elapse before the discussion ended.

Speaking of the fact that some 30 or 40 people had attended the last meeting of the Selectmen, to discuss the 'gas question' of the proposed West School, LaRivee moved that as a matter of policy people who wanted to speak to the Selectmen should have an appointment, either with the Chairman or the Secretary.

At the end of the discussion LaRivee's motion lost, when two members (Niles and Bender) voted against it, and Mrs. Drew abstained as she wanted more time to think things over.

LaRivee felt that it was unfair that a number of persons could come in and disrupt the agenda. It would be only courteous to the board he said, to have the members ready to answer questions, rather than to have to come with answers for questions for which they were not prepared.

His motion was seconded by Black.

Selectman Niles took exception to the word 'hearing' which LaRivee had used, saying that last week's session was not a hearing, but rather that a group of citizens had arrived at the meeting seeking information.

LaRivee said he had received a telephone call, asking 'Where is the hearing?' Niles said he could see nothing wrong with a group of citizens coming to a Selectmen's meeting. LaRivee felt that, in a last minute emergency, appointments could be made, but, in fairness to the board, he felt that an earlier appointment should be made, if possible.

Bender spoke up to point out that the board had just discussed the issuance of a license to the Continental Trailer Rental & Sales Company, and this was not on the agenda. The board had not only discussed, Bender said, it had also voted.

Niles said 'All I can remember last week is that a group of people came down to talk over gas heat, in a school, and I don't recall any hearing'.

Bender said that as a matter of fact 'there was no hearing'. One had been set up, he said, for the next night, in the Boutwell School.

'It has come to my attention' he stated 'that an attempt has been made to place the responsibility of the gathering on me. Nothing could be further from the truth.'

'My sole advice to the group was that any identification with me would be more liable to hurt them than to help them. I would only guarantee that they would be heard'

Mrs. Drew said she was aware of the fact that people were coming to the meeting. Both Black and LaRivee said that they were not.

Contempt of court draws 10 days

A Glen Road young man was sent to the House of Correction, on March 24th, by Justice Sartorelli of Woburn Court, after he had tried to clear a friend on a charge of driving after his license had been suspended.

The 18 year old youth and a Tewksbury boy, a former Wilmington resident, were observed in a pickup truck, on Glen Road, by Chief of Police, Paul J. Lynch, on March 6th. The Tewksbury boy, whose license had been suspended, was doing the driving.

Chief Lynch went to the Glen Road home and questioned the two youths, after which they were summoned to court.

When their case came up, before Judge Sartorelli, the Glen Road youth told the judge that it was he who was driving, while the Tewksbury youth made a plea of not guilty.

Chief Lynch positively identified the Tewksbury boy as the driver. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 for driving after his license had been suspended, and was sent to the House of Correction to serve 10 days.

Then the Justice called the Glen Road boy back to the stand, and observed that he was not satisfied but that perjury had been committed, after which he passed sentence of 10 days, for Contempt of Court.

PLANNING BOARD (Fr. Fr. Pg.)

Member Mel Bloom started the ball rolling, in the early part of the evening by stating that he felt something should be done to provide a base of operation and provide something concrete from which to work. He had prepared a motion: that the Planning Board hire a town planner on a 1 year contract to work 3 days per week and 2 nights per month with the Planning Board and to be available to the Planning Board. His duties to include but not limiting:

1. To revise and update the subdivision control laws including specifications.
2. To revise and update the zoning by-laws and zoning maps.
3. To prepare plans for an industrial park in the Northwest corner of the town, NW of Route 125.
4. To prepare forms and procedure for a more efficient operation.
5. To advise the Planning Board as to all plans and sub-divisions.
6. To conduct a traffic survey of Main Street with a goal to improve the traffic flow.
7. That additional studies may be necessary.
8. That the above studies be completed concurrently, if possible.

Attny. Banda suggested the addition of -- and any thing in relation thereto. Jim Miceli seconded the motion.

Miceli seconded Bloom's motion and then moved the question. The motion to move the question was defeated by a 3 to 1 vote.

And so the discussion continued. Attny. Banda called a Point of Order and stated that at last week's meeting a motion 'to decide what to do about a consultant' was defeated by a 3-2 vote. In essence, Banda stated that the Board had no business discussing anything concerning a consultant.

'I think you are out of order', he remonstrated.

The committee members were deaf, for the discussion continued as before.

Evans appeared a bit annoyed and asked Banda what deadline he was trying to beat?

Banda replied... 'None, but we have money to use and we must do something. What do you have against action? Every time something like this comes up, you stall or drag your feet.'

'This is a far reaching program,' Evans retorted, 'and we must be cautious. We have made gains in the past by going slowly.'

Bloom, Evans and others all started talking at once. Uproar and confusion reigned.

Gillis, in a loud voice (so that he could be heard) called... 'Mr. Chairman, I think we should observe the normal courtesy and wait until one member finishes before another starts to speak.'

Planning is done on a long range basis and the Planning Board has the destiny of the town in its hands, stated Evans.

Chairman Rounds, at this point, suggested that 'Maybe we should put a time limit on the talk.'

We must convince the people and must have answers. What have we done with the $16,000, Attny. Banda said. Let's get going on someone or some firm....one month has gone by already. The projects selected are the Planning Board's concern. Let's find out who we are going to get for our money.... we should prepare....The people who gave us the $8,000 will want to know 'what have you done'.

Bloom explained that his motion was to give the Planning Board a basis from which to work. 'Any forward motion', he said, 'is better than a status quo.'

Evans commended the freshman member of the Board and felt that he had done well with his outline. But, he said, he would hate to think this is the whole program. 'There are some 60 deficiencies in our sub-division control law, according to Sam Snow, who I consider a capable planner.'

'We don't want to drag this out', said Gillis, 'we should set up a program and the priorities with suggestions from all. Then after this list is done, we should ask consultants to come in and question them about the time needed to complete the projects and the costs of the program. I don't want to be tied for 3 years to one person, whoever it may be.'

Evans felt that they can pretty well 'gel' the zoning problems, this year and that they were approaching the stage of mature planning. All our prior consultants, he said, have advised keeping the programs up to date. 'I know of no town in the state of Massachusetts, the size of Wilmington, that has a full-time planner.'

Equal Time

'Let's get down to the basic problem', said Banda. We are playing with words. He noted that Evans had had 10 minutes and demanded equal time.

The trend seems to be, Rounds interjected, that we are subtly agreeing --- we don't need anyone on a continuing basis but sometimes may need advice on a single item.

Mel Bloom was of the opinion that every point that Evans mentioned seems to point to having a permanent planner for the Town. 'The studies', he said, 'are only the beginning of the big job and the implementation is up to the Board. I think that we need someone available to help implement the studies, to have discussion groups and be an aid to the Planning Board as well as suggest direction.'

Evans didn't feel it was necessary to be the first in hiring a full time planner.

Perhaps some minor items should be lumped together and given to the planner and handled all at one time, suggested Rounds. Evans was in agreement.

After better than two and one half hours, the Board finally got around to considering the motion on the floor and Gillis stated that he did not wish to go along with the motion as it was written.

Since no one could remember exactly what the motion was, Chairman Rounds asked for a reading of the motion and suggested a vote.

Evans just continued to expound on the merits and faults of the motion.

Rounds called for a vote. He abstained from voting, but it was a tie vote, 2-2, so he cast the deciding vote and Bloom's motion was defeated 3-2.

Banda proposed a motion that the members prepare a list of major projects and that they meet next Tuesday with the lists, and set up a priority. Gillis seconded.

This time everyone was in favor. Evans pointed out that the State Department of Commerce has a list of planners available that they will supply on request. They will also have a representative come out, by appointment, but they need two weeks notice.

Gillis, the Secretary, was instructed to send a letter asking for a man to come before the Planning Board.

Liquor License

For years it has been the dream of some of Wilmington's residents that they would get a liquor license in Wilmington. The law would not allow another until there was at least 15,001 inhabitants of this town. Last week the Town Crier announced that the magic figure had been reached.

Only one person, however, had the time to do any thinking, and that was Atty Jim Banda, of Marie Drive.

He was the only applicant to submit a request for a license to the Board of Selectmen, in Monday's meeting, which now puts him in the number one position for that license - if the selectmen ever do grant it.

Letter to Water Board about new well field

Board of Water Commissioners
Town Hall, Wilmington, Mass.

re: Eminent Domain taking authorized by Article 21, Town Meeting Warrant.

Gentlemen:

The annual Town Meeting authorized the Board of Water Commissioners or Board of Selectmen to take certain property off Butters Row by eminent domain. The description of the taking in Article 21 refers to property owned by Mrs. George M.A.M. Webber.

Because I have not seen the plan of the proposed taking, I do not know the exact content of its effect against property now or formerly owned by Mrs. Webber. However, it does not seem that the described taking would apply in whole or in part against the land now held by the Wilmington Historical Society, Inc. which was donated by Mrs. Webber. A print of a plan showing this land is enclosed.

In order to avoid unnecessary complications which otherwise might develop, I refer your attention to G.L. (ter. ed.) C. 79, s. 5A, as amended, which provides in part that:

...no property owned, preserved and maintained by any historical organization or society as an ancient landmark or as property

Fitzmaurice
(Fr. Fr. Pg)

the only person absent of either committees. It was explained that he was taking a vacation in Nassau.

The Lowell Gas Company was represented by Russell Kierstead, and he had several assistants, one of whom was George Doulames, a Gas Engineer who had been employed by Lowell Gas for twenty five years.

Offered in opposition by Ralph Flodin, of Chestnut Street, was Charles Conrad, of the New England Fuel Institute, the only person of historical and antiquarian interest shall be taken without leave of the general court specially obtained.

The land in question is believed to contain the longest remaining section of the Middlesex Canal in Wilmington. Mrs. Webber's donation to the Wilmington Historical Society, Inc., requires that the Society must preserve and maintain the property 'as an ancient landmark'.

It is not the intention of the Wilmington Historical Society, or of Mrs. Webber, to deprive the town of Wilmington or access to needed water supply. It is intended to preserve this remnant of the Middlesex Canal from further damage or encroachment. It should be noted that this section of the Middlesex Canal was held and preserved by Mrs. Webber and her mother for over ninety years.

As these objectives need not be incompatible, I would appreciate an opportunity for myself and Mr. Stanley Webber, Treasurer of the Wilmington Historical Society Inc., to meet with your Board to discuss this matter. I believe it is possible to devise a reasonable and mutually satisfactory means of satisfying both objectives.

Very truly yours,
Joseph F. Courtney for Wilmington Historical Society Inc.

with a professional heating engineering status to speak against the use of gas in the school.

Members of the PBC told the audience that they had originally been in favor of oil heat, but that they had changed their minds when they learned of the economies of gas heat.

Alternative proposals for both oil and gas were being called for they said, in the current bidding.

THE LATEST RECRUIT: Zip, a trained German shepherd police dog, joined the Wilmington Police Department yesterday. He received his training with the K-9 Corps of the Somerville Police Department, Sgt. James Tatosky.

Zip is being introduced to the Squad Room in police headquarters by Patrolman James Palmer, who is to be the 'handler' for Zip.

ORGANIZED CRIME FILM TO BE SHOWN APRIL 4

Mr. Dwight Strong of the New England Citizens Crime Commission will speak briefly and present a film entitled 'The Captive City' at the High School on Sunday, April 4th, at 3 pm.

Mr. Strong has stated that the lavish benefits of legalized gambling are unfounded. The real dividends received are increase rates in crime, corruption, welfare costs, and taxes. The money derived from gambling becomes the basis of organized crime itself, he said, and suggested that we should not be fooled by the favorable propaganda of the New Hampshire state lottery.

They have many problems that do not appear on the surface.

Mr. Strong is responsible for initiating the investigation which resulted in the CBS TV documentary, 'Biography of a Bookie Joint.' The public is urged to attend this program; there is no charge for admission.
